

Case Study of Syrian Communications Equipment Room Construction

it could form and control public opinion in Syria and wield greater influence in the Arab world. The project has assumed its present form because the government in general and former Prime Minister Jabri in ...

This research aims to improve the quality of design, and contracting phase of the State Company for Engineering Studies in Damascus's projects, by examining the current reality of ...

This research aims to improve the quality of design, and contracting phase of the State Company for Engineering Studies in Damascus's projects, by ...

Integrating Earned Value Management System (EVMS) and Building Information Modelling (BIM) enhances project performance in Syrian AEC projects. The study establishes a methodology to ...

Search across a wide variety of disciplines and sources: articles, theses, books, abstracts and court opinions.

This report covers the current status of the penetration of Information, Communication and Industrial Automation Technologies in Syrian industry, their use, the level of progress in hardware, software and ...

This chapter presents the background information related to humanitarian logistics, construction logistics, overview Syrian humanitarian operations as case study, purpose, scope, and ended with ...

The largest single projected expenditure of the Syrian Government for 1947 is for the creation of an automatic telephone system and radio broadcasting station. The sum allotted is LLS 270000,000.

The research proposes a methodology to assess major risks in the Syrian construction industry using historical data and reports to develop a questionnaire including the top major risks in the construction ...

exploring the complex contextual constraints and limitations, and specifically assessing the energy, water, communication, solid and liquid waste, and public space needs in a selection of cities, while ...

Integrating Earned Value Management System (EVMS) and Building Information Modelling (BIM) enhances project performance in Syrian AEC projects. The study ...

The research aims at construction projects in Syria and focuses on the study of quality in the design and contracting phase of the State Company for Studies in Damascus.

Case Study of Syrian Communications Equipment Room Construction

Web: <https://www.csc-energia.com.pl>