

The continued weaponization of internet shutdowns by the warring parties in Sudan is a violation of international law. Media reports and five Sudanese experts interviewed by Amnesty ...

The telecommunications blackout in Sudan began in February 2024 when the cellular connection to Sudan's three mobile network operators (MNOs) - MTN, Zain, and Sudatel - was switched off, ...

In the midst of the devastating humanitarian crisis that is fast deteriorating in Sudan, we, representing 94 humanitarian, civil society and human rights organizations, urgently appeal for the re ...

Both the SAF and the RSF face accusations of committing atrocious acts of violence against Sudan's civilians, which include random detentions and vicious killings. Aid agencies ...

Sudan's telecom regulator, the National Telecommunications Corporation (NTC), has teamed up with mobile network operator Sudatel and ...

Indiscriminate attacks and disruption of telecommunications by warring parties have severely affected civilians' ability to cope with the effects of the war, as well as aid workers' capacity to...

Parties to the conflict must end collective punishment and enable access to life-saving telecommunications.

Following a protracted six-day outage, only a few locations in the east and north have restored unreliable services. The blackout started on February 2, 2024, in response to allegations ...

Sudan's communications infrastructure has been heavily impacted since the outbreak of conflict on 15 April 2023, as a result of direct damage to telecommunications towers, electricity ...

A joint statement by 94 NGOs, including Access Now and the Norwegian Refugee Council, condemns the disruption of telecommunications as a weapon of war. Indiscriminate attacks ...

The continued weaponization of internet shutdowns by the warring parties in Sudan is a violation of international law. Media reports and five ...

Indiscriminate attacks and disruption of telecommunications by warring parties have severely affected civilians' ability to cope with the effects of the war, as well as aid workers' capacity ...

Web: <https://www.csc-energia.com.pl>